LEARNING TO LOVE WHAT YOU DO

Joy L. Gibb, ABOC

WHICH ONE ARE YOU?

ATTITUDE

Do you need to evaluate?
- Take actions without expecting reward
- Don't take yourself too seriously
- Forgive the limitations of others

Avoid Complacency
- Stretch yourself past your limits every day
- Look for ways to improve skills and position
- Use setbacks to improve your skills
- Verbalize your desires to improve

- Say thank you more frequently.
- Don't dwell on the negative

Say thank you more frequently. Don't dwell on the negative.
Keep it Exciting!
- Change your routine
- Goof off a little with team members
- Set some goals
- Do something for someone else

OUTWARD MINDSET
Question

- How does my job affect and/or influence others?
  - Patients
  - Team Members

COMPASSION

Compassion for Patients

- They are more than just an insurance or a wallet with legs
- First exam for them = 20th exam of the day for you
- Senior patients fear losing independence
- It may not be an emergency to you, but it is to them
I CAN LEARN TO LOVE MY JOB

Never Stop Learning
- Stretch yourself to learn new skills
- Would you like to cross train for other positions
- Find educational opportunities
- Find a mentor
- Make someone better than yourself
- Read, read, read!

STAY MOTIVATED
CONCLUSION

Conclusion

You always have a choice in how you view your work.

It can be a job or a never-ending opportunity to learn, grow, and serve those around you.

THANK YOU

for attending!
